"Life x 3"

An original and thought-provoking play by Pulitzer Prize winning playwright, Yasmina Reza, author of the world-renowned smash hit, "Art"

Henry and Sonia are spending a quiet evening at home. Sonia is preparing her reports. Henry is trying to deal with their sleepless six-year-old son. But Henry is about to have a bigger problem.

He is on the verge of publishing two years of scientific research and is desperate to make a good impression on the distinguished senior scientist, Hubert Finidori.

So when the doorbell rings and Hubert Finidori arrives with his rebellious wife in tow for dinner on the wrong night and there is no food in the apartment, (merely an ample supply of wine), it sets the stage for a fast-paced, catastrophic unraveling of normal civilized behavior. But what kind of a disaster will it be? See what happens when the scenario spins out of control three different ways.

As witty and acerbic as "Art", the delightful "Life x 3" contrasts man's deft ability to analyze the far reaches of the universe, with his total inability to respond rationally to a trivial domestic mishap. "Life x 3" will leave you laughing with delight and recognition.

"[An] extraordinary play...The writing is brisk, brittle, funny and lethally accurate."
